

EQUALITY

& DIVERSITY

The Equality Act was introduced in 2010 to establish a legal baseline to protect people from discrimination in the workplace as well as in wider society. It sets out the ways in which it is unlawful to treat people in the workplace and other settings.

This course will examine what both equality and diversity mean in the modern context. You will learn about how equality and diversity can be implemented in the workplace, who has responsibility and for what, as well as the specific characteristics protected by relevant legislation.

COURSE COVERS

The Equality Act and its purpose.

What the protected characteristics are and the types of discrimination.

It also covers identifying and tackling discrimination as well as unconscious bias.

SUITABLE FOR

This course is suitable for all employees, it is a vital step for new or existing employees to undergo training to recognise instances of workplace discrimination.

KEY DETAILS

Duration: 45-60 minutes

Assessment: Multiple Choice

Certified: DLCS Accreditation

Access: 12 Months

Localisation: UK and NI

Support: Phone and Email

Digital Learning

CERTIFICATION SERVICE

APPROVED COURSE